

New Histories of Native and Colonial North America
"New Scholar Series" on Critical Race Studies and Ethnicity

"Sachems, Snakeskins, and Statecraft: Indigenous Diplomacy in Colonial New England"

~ Talk by historian Mack Scott.

This talk traces the agency of Indigenous leaders as they employed alliances, aid, deception, and fear—the traditional tools of statecraft—to reorder the political landscape in southern New England during the mid-seventeenth century.

April 9, 2021 at 8:30AM to 9:45AM EST

Join Zoom Meeting:

<https://conncoll-edu.zoom.us/j/93211459029>

Mack Scott (Kansas State University, Ph.D. History, 2019) is an enrolled member of the Narragansett Indian Tribe. His work focuses on the intersections of race and identity.

Free and open to the CC campus and guests from the community.

Organized by the History Department with support from Creating Connections Consortium (C3)

CONNECTICUT COLLEGE